Dear Vicki:-

This certainly has been quite a year - in many ways am glad its over but then again its sad -

Can't believe we're finally going to be seniors after 3 yrs it seems impossible. We've got a good class & know we can make mth the best place ever.

Couldn't forget all the fun(?) we've had. French and skiing etc. - Am really glad you're going to be the Day Student Representative.

Have a great summer - and if you're in Boston you must stop by - o.k. -

Best of luck Always.

miss hall's school
pittsfield, massachusetts

This year saw strong effort on the part of many sincerely concerned students and faculty who wanted to make Miss Hall's a school in which they could learn and grow together. The care and concern for the school and its future which was displayed this year was remarkable. Behind many thoughtless actions of the students was a deep concern for Miss Hall's, inadequately expressed through a lack of maturity. We saw an opportunity to make an impression upon the institution that had been a part of our lives for three or four years, and we seized the chance eagerly, often without forethought.

What had been wrong with Miss Hall's? Students and faculty alike had become less interested, less concerned, less effective. Mr. McLain arrived to face a dull academic climate. The potential existed, but the interest of students and faculty was seriously lacking.

What had become of the fine school of our mothers' day? Miss Hall's was lost imperceptively, lost not long ago by sentimentalists too long contained in an artificial society which ignored the changing world. They had the best of intentions: to shelter their students, to teach them to become the fine ladies they themselves were. Unfortunately thoughtful students did not want protection; they wanted to be realistically prepared for life. The fond traditions became trite, artificial, and devoid of significance. Students, frustrated with conditions they were unable to deal with, became apathetic. Faculty, upset by the students' lack of concern, retreated. Lines of communication broke down. The administration became the adversary of both groups.

Miss Hall's 1968 was directionless and vague; it had to be. It was a year of discovery, a year of probing strengths and weaknesses, a year of definition of what the school had been and what it could be. The great changes everyone expected with the arrival of Mr. McLain did not materialize because students used to tight control do not mature overnight, nor do faculty biases disappear immediately.

Miss Hall's can and will be a fine, modern school, combining the best of the past with a realistic acknowledgement of the present. It should be a strong academic community where classwork overflows into the dining room and onto the hockey fields. It should be a school in which academic stimulation is strong and interest is keen. The entire community must be involved. Students and faculty must respect and attempt to understand each other; each must sense the value of what the other has to offer.

They must grow together, work together. All of this will come in time if the school will support the creation of this ideal. Will the promise be fulfilled?

In order to exist together, we must willingly be sensitive to each other. We must come out of our shells, we must come out from behind our shields and we must confront each other as real sensitive, loving individuals.

Striving to communicate, but with love, with sensitivity, we gain truth and we achieve deeper dimensions in ourselves and in our relationships with others with other people.

At heart we are all alone, and at the pit of this loneliness is a sensitivity and a love which must be brought to light.

For only then, when each of us has recognized our own sensitive souls, can we share ourselves with others. For then are we real, real enough to gain and to give respect to all other individuals,

Susan Raab

I doubt if there is anyone here who does not see the direct relevance of those passages to us. We are under pressure, yes, but at this point it is basically academic.

We're going to be under pressure for the rest of our lives. And let's face it, it will never get any better. It will only become greater.

If we buckle under this pressure, now, can we expect to be able to stand under it later?

Everything we do here at Miss Hall's is setting the stage for our future; but the stage is by no means set. It's not too late to change a bad attitude before it becomes a permanent part of your setting. It's not too late to stand up on your own two feet, to admit your shortcomings, to face your problems — or at least TRY!

It won't be easy, now, but you can bet it won't get any easier as time goes on.

He Never Says 'Smile'

Mr. Clemens Kalischer will be celebrating his ninth year as official photographer for Miss Hall's School. Mr. Kalischer's activities are not limited only to M.H.S., however. His pictures are featured often in Time, Life, Fortune, Vermont Life, and The New York Times magazine section and in the book review section. While having a delicious lunch of fruit fritters and vegetable soup at M.H.S., Mr. Kalischer said that he was born in Germany, and, after having spent his youth in Switzerland and France, he came to the United States. Mr. Kalischer attended Cooper Union in New York, where he graduated with honors.

Mr. Kalischer admitted that his first love was art and drawing, and that only after World War II had he become interested in photography. "As a matter of fact," he confessed, "I never even owned a camera before 1949!" In 1957, he moved to Stockbridge, where he resides now with his wife Angela and his two daughters, Tanya, who is five, and Cornelia, who is nine.

Mr. Kalischer says that because his style of photography is unique, he uses no special techniques. Among the photographers who have his admiration are Ed Weston and Bob Frank; even though relatively unknown, he feels they take excellent pictures.

In 1959 a friend, Mrs. Klein, asked him to come to M.H.S. and talk to some of her students about photography, and ever since then, he has been taking our yearbook pictures. Mr. Kalischer is multilingual and among the languages he speaks fluently are English, German and French. He finds this very useful in his capacity as a photographer.

Mr. Kalischer loves to travel, and in 1964 he was sent to India on an assignment, where he stayed all summer. Presently, he is on a life assignment to photograph the oil-slicked beaches of Puerto Rico. He has also traveled widely in the United States and hopes to go to Europe this summer.

In 1965, he started the Image Gallery in Stockbridge, and directs and owns it. The Image Gallery is widely respected for its varied, monthly exhibitions of paintings, sculpture, and photographs.

Miss Hall's is fortunate to have such a fine photographer who is also such a fine person.

Dear Vicki,
It's very difficult to say anything to such a good friend and great,
lively, bubbly, loquacious (??),
eye-opening, car-opening and great, kid, (where!) especially at the close of our last year. There's another year ahead, and we'll never regret having to wait ~~this~~ another year, because I means together 172 more days now that jr. year has past, and our minds are filled with thousands of visions of ourselves as seniors rings, blazers, privileges, and millions of responsibilities. I wish you took the best name will go down in Mrs Hall's history as just, but let's face it, ~~next~~ senior year will be a great one to help
You, Vicki, and get real about your enthusiasm and interest.
It's great to know someone like that!

Love always,
Nancy
